Dear Friends.

Greetings in Jesus Name!

Thank you for allowing us to sharing Rebecca's testimony with you. Today she has a new found confidence and building new relationships.

I look forward to continually sharing the testimonies of these wonderful women and how God has allowed us to have a front row seat to His mighty hand on their lives.

Thank you for all your love, prayers and support.

Blessings to you all,

Susan & Maria

Hello, my name is Rebecca Cramer. I am 38 years old from Mechanicsburg, PA. I grew up in a Christian home accepting Jesus as my Savior at a young age. My home life was great.

Growing up on a farm and being a bigger girl was never easy, kids are mean so you can imagine all the names I was called. In my teenage years my struggle started with men and the internet. I was always looking for love. I would do whatever I could to get love even if it meant buying it.

In 2008, I met my ex-husband through a mutual friend. We got married in 2010; bought a house both had full time jobs and cars. In 2014, my world came crashing down, my husband told me he didn't love me anymore, and was having an affair. The void from the divorce just made my search for love all the worse, so I jumped right back on the internet. The next guy was worse than the first he was physically, mentally, emotionally, sexually abusive and controlling. I did whatever I needed to so he wouldn't leave, including abandoning my faith, family, friends and self worth. My lowest point with him was being homeless. I decided to leave and tell my parents everything. My parents looked at me and said you need help. My Mom told me about New Life for Girls. I called the next day. Entering this program has done great things for my life. The Lord has restored my family. I thank God for the people He has put in my life to help me through this journey. I ask that you continue to pray for me in this time as I make some life changing decisions. I praise Him as He continues to work on me and help through each and every day and situation.
